

Susanne O'Reilly

Susanne is Country Communications, Public Affairs and Advocacy Head at Novartis Ireland. She has over 20 years experiences working in the healthcare field, and has been with Novartis for 15 years working in customer and externally facing roles right across their portfolio of products and in particular in the rare disease orphan medicine space for most of the last decade.

Susanne has experience analysing current and future structure and trends of healthcare systems at both an Irish and international level, particularly in small countries similar to Ireland.

She was a member of the Rare Disease Taskforce and contributed to development of and oversight of implementation of the National Rare Diseases Plan for Ireland 2014-2018.

Susanne is a past board member and company secretary at Irish Platform for Patient Organisations, Science and Industry (IPPOSI).
